Course Description

Digital Citizenship is a topic that many teachers are just beginning to address. For many of us, when it comes to online participation and social media, our first thought is "avoidance" or "limits" or a list of do's and don'ts. While there are clearly subjects that our students need to avoid and behaviors that need to be prohibited, the narrative about Digital Citizenship needs to change. The fact is that most people in the 21st century exist in two worlds - reality and digital reality. Our students are no different. As teachers, we need to begin to consider how to mentor and train our students to navigate their digital reality safely. At the same time, we need to show them how they can use their digital reality to not only improve themselves but also make positive contributions to their online communities and the wider world. That's the main idea behind the concept of Digital Citizenship. The goal of this course is to equip you as a teacher so that you can train your students to become model digital citizens.

Note: Required textbook must be acquired separately.

National Standards Addressed in This Course

National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS)

(<http://www.nbpts.org/standards-five-core-propositions/>)

First published in 1989 and updated in 2016, What Teachers Should Know and Be Able to Do articulates the National Board's Five Core Propositions for teaching. The Five Core Propositions - comparable to medicine's Hippocratic Oath — set forth the profession's vision for accomplished teaching. Together, the propositions form the basis of all National Board Standards and the foundation for National Board Certification. Course assignments have been designed so students can demonstrate excellence against these professional teaching standards whenever possible.

- Proposition 1: Teachers are committed to students and their learning
- Proposition 2: Teachers know the subject they teach and how to teach those subjects to students
- Proposition 3: Teachers are responsible for managing and monitoring student learning
- Proposition 4: Teachers think systematically about their practice and learn from experience
- Proposition 5: Teachers are members of learning communities

National Teaching Standards (NB points) Propositions addressed in this course: 1, 2, 4, 5

<http://www.iste.org/standards> - ISTE - International Society for Technology in Education Standards
The ISTE Standards for Educators are your road map to helping students become empowered learners. These standards will deepen your practice, promote collaboration with peers, challenge you to rethink traditional approaches and prepare students to drive their own learning.

ISTE Standards Addressed in this course: 1,2,3,4,5,6

Services for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities are eligible for reasonable accommodations in their academic work in all classes. In order to receive assistance, the student with a disability must provide the Academic Support Center with documentation, which describes the specific disability. The documentation must be from a qualified professional in the area of the disability (i.e. psychologist, physician or educational diagnostician). Students with disabilities should contact the Academic Support Center to discuss academic and other needs as soon as they are diagnosed with a disability. Once documentation is on file, arrangements for reasonable accommodations can be made.
