Course Overview:

Certified educators will earn three semester graduate level units of college credit and a letter grade from Fresno Pacific University upon satisfactory completion of forty-five hours coursework and assignments. The Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) accredits Fresno Pacific University. The central focus of the course is to enable students to make their own original instructional or educational projects tailored for practical use in teaching grade level subject matter assignments or in educational program support assignments. Transferability and acceptability of the credits are at the discretion of the receiving institution. Upon enrollment and registration, a Course Syllabus containing requirements, assignments, and pertinent Fresno Pacific University information will be issued to each student. The major aspects of the coursework are the development of instructional materials and/or educational projects, recording the completed coursework experiences in a Log Record Journal and showing proof of coursework productivity, and evidence of learning upon course completion. When all coursework activities, assignments, and requirements have been documented and verified, the student will submit the completed coursework to the instructor for grading and issuance of credit.

Course Outcomes – Upon successful completion of this course, the students will have:

- Made customized resources for meeting their own unique educational needs.
- Created materials and/or projects for use in their classrooms or educational programs.
- Addressed district, state and national standards as appropriately related to career.
- Produced a time log journal of the coursework experiences listing derived benefits.
- Built confidence and competence in creating resources for meeting educational needs.
- Self-made materials and/or projects readily available for implementation as needed.
- Completed coursework that is connected with self-developed course objectives.
- Become better equipped by completing coursework related to self-written objectives.
- Submitted a self-prescribed action plan for integrating the newly created resources.
- More awareness of the vast amount of educational resources available to educators.
- Developed useful skills for working independently and becoming more self-reliant.
- Improved abilities to make their own instructional materials or educational projects.
- Improved their educational research skills and efforts in locating resources.
- Become better prepared to perform better as a professional educator.

Course Description:

This hands-on course enables educators to individually develop customized instructional or educational projects of their own choosing for curriculum and/or program enhancement. Students on their own choose, select, and develop original and customized resources for use in the teaching/learning process or for utilization in specialized educationally related assignments.

Students engage in a variety of learning activities that include, but not limited to, coursework planning, selecting course goals and objectives, researching and evaluating educational resources, completing a self-inventory, developing instructional materials and/or projects, completing a personal data information form, completing a written log listing coursework activity hours of involvement, developing an action plan for implementation, and completing a course evaluation in written form reflecting coursework benefits. Teachers are encouraged to develop curriculum resources targeted for increasing student motivation, engagement, achievement, and improving test scores. Non-teaching personnel may develop educational projects of their own choosing, providing the projects relate to their educationally related career assignments. Upon course completion, the students will be able to immediately apply and use the newly developed classroom instructional materials and/or educational program projects in their classes or educational career settings.

Basic Course Requirements:

- Review the Course Syllabus and complete all assignments contain therein.
- Make your own classroom materials and/or educational program projects.
- Keep Log Record Journal of coursework time and tasks for verification of course productivity.
- Have documented Log Record Journal of coursework verified by a Course Monitor.
- Upon course completion, submit completed Course Syllabus of coursework as directed.

Course Requirements – Hours and Assignments:

- Spend 45 verified hours to completing coursework activities and assignments.
- Select a qualified Course Monitor to verify coursework for accuracy and completeness.
- List selection of course goals and objectives.
- Address the district, state, and national educational standards.
- Maintain a log documenting coursework time and tasks from onset through course completion.
- Complete an Action Plan for implementation of developed course projects.
- Show proof of coursework productivity in a Log Record Journal of completed assignments.
- Write an evaluation summary and address the resulting benefits of this course.

Table Outlining Schedule of Assignments:

The starting point of the coursework would be for the student to read the Course Syllabus. A careful perusal of the Course Syllabus is paramount for familiarizing the students with the course description, course requirements, course outcomes, course completion procedures, and course assignment format. The Course Syllabus contains information and instruction on how to proceed and complete all assignments. The following table is a preview of the coursework involvement. In completing the major assignments, the student is required to develop tangible hands-on class materials or educational projects of his or her choosing. In addition to the self-made productions, the student is further required to complete all course assignments included in the Course Syllabus. While completing the coursework and assignments, the student is expected to use critical thinking, problem solving, and decision-making skills. The student, at course ending, shows further evidence of learning by submitting the Course Syllabus containing all completed assignments to the instructor as directed.

Table: Listing of Coursework Related to Making Classroom Materials and/or Education Projects

Assignment #1 - Selecting a Course Monitor for Verification of Coursework
Assignment #2 - Selecting Goals and Listing Course Objectives
Assignment #3 - Self-Needs Assessment and Listing Selected Projects to Develop
Assignment #4 - Action Plan for Implementation of Newly Developed Educational Resources
Assignment #5 - Log Record Journal of Listing Activities and Hours Spent on Coursework Tasks

Assignment #1 – Selecting a Course Monitor for Verification of Coursework:

Course Monitor – To be Chosen for Verifying Student’s Coursework in Log Record Journal

It is the student’s responsibility to select a qualified certificated person to become his or her Course Monitor for verifying the evidence of learning taking place and validating student coursework productivity. It would be in the student’s best interest to find and choose someone who would be eager to serve as the student’s Course Monitor. Basically, the Course Monitor has the professional responsibility to review and verify the student’s coursework and on-task accumulated hours as accurate and complete. The student obtains a commitment from the Course Monitor to meet at a course culminating conference for the purpose of validating the coursework contained in the Log Record Journal as accurate and complete. Any of the following certificated personnel may be chosen to perform as the student’s Course Monitor: (1) A Teacher with a minimum of three years experience, (2) A Teacher with a Masters Degree, (3) A Department Chair, or (4) Any Administrator.

Purpose: Course Monitor will verify the accuracy of student-recorded entries of coursework listed in the Log Record Journal on page 10 of this Course Syllabus.

Instruction: The student obtains a commitment from the Course Monitor to meet at a course concluding review conference for the purpose of validating evidence of coursework productivity.

Course Concluding Review Conference: The course concluding review conference is to be scheduled when the student coursework has been finalized and the time of course on-task activities equals the minimum of 45 hours, the requirement for issuance of three-semester units of college credit. At the course concluding review conference, both the student and the course monitor will jointly affix their signatures on page 10 of this course syllabus, attesting to the accuracy and completeness of the recorded data listed in the Log Record Journal of coursework activities.

Course Monitor Information: Fill in the lines blank lines pertaining to your Course Monitor.

Assignment #2 - Selecting Course Goals and Listed Objectives:

Purpose: Completing this assignment in the early stages of the coursework experiences allows for the completion of subsequent assignments after your course goals and objectives have been established and conceptualized with a solid understanding of course expectations.

Course Goals: Check boxes most appropriate for your enrollment in this course.

- Constructing unique and customized resources for educational purposes.
- Having self-made classroom materials or educational program projects readily available.
- Adding supplementary resources to curriculum cache or educational repertoire.
- Increasing awareness of district, national, and state standards linked to career assignment.
- Increasing knowledge, competence, and effectiveness as an educator.
- Learning to make materials or projects for educational purposes.
- Become better equipped and prepared for being more effective in job performance.
- Looking for additional ideas, methods, and ways to improve the educational process.
- Salary Advancement.
- License Renewal or Re-Certification.

From the above listed course goals, cite your most important goal for enrolling in this course.

Listed Course Objectives: Show your awareness of these objectives and check all four as listed. Successful completion of the four course objectives cited is required for receiving a passing letter grade and three semester graduate-level units of college credit.

- Making your own classroom materials and/or educational program projects
- Performing on task coursework activities for at least the minimum of 45 hours.
- Increasing awareness of district, national, and state standards linked to career assignment.
- Successfully completing all assignments in this Course Syllabus.

Assignment #3 - Self-Needs Assessment and Listing Selected Projects to Develop:

Purpose: Through a self-identified needs assessment, determine what classroom materials or educational projects would benefit your classroom or enhance your program. Based on the needs assessment results, the major purpose of this assignment is the selection of materials or projects to be developed in the course. Selecting materials or projects to be developed is the starting point enabling the student to move forward in making original and customized resources to be utilized in the educational setting.

Teachers may develop and make, but not limited to, teaching units, lesson plans, grading charts, learning games, calendars, posters, flash cards, charts, displays, visual aids, overhead projections, quizzes, spelling lists, tests, bulletin board displays, portfolio models, computerized presentations, classroom libraries, multi-media presentations, budgets, learning centers, field trip plans, letters to parents, and other learning materials and or projects

Administrators, Counselors, Directors, Support Personnel, and Athletic Coaches may create, construct, or develop educational projects of their choosing provided the projects relate to their educational career assignments.
