Course Description

This course is offered as an online course or a traditional distance learning course. It is designed to help teachers, grades K-5, gain an understanding of the nature of content area curriculum. The goals of content area curriculum are beyond simply reading. These goals require higher order thinking and literacy skills. Elementary students are asked to explore key issues, understand specialized vocabulary, develop core concepts, as well as obtain, process, compare, explain, examine, predict, and build knowledge. If children cannot attach new information to prior knowledge, understand key concepts and vocabulary, or synthesize the information read to make meaning, then these literacy deficiencies will impede student progress and create barriers to understanding content areas (social studies, math, and science). This course will equip primary and elementary teachers with the background and tools to lay a solid foundation for elementary schoolchildren, developing in them the skills they need to be successful with informational text. By investigating and utilizing research-based and classroom proven strategies, students will have the opportunity to design activities and lessons that include creating the framework for reading, keying into vocabulary, setting the framework for writing, developing comprehension, and research writing that promotes content literacy in the classroom and provides instruction that braids literacy processes with the curriculum.

The format, materials, and activities in this course relate to the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) (<http://www.nbpts.org/>) and the Common Core State Standards (CCSS) (<http://www.corestandards.org/the-standards>). These national standards will undergird the format of the course which will rely heavily on online discussions, reflective journal responses, and the course project. The activities will require the participant to make connections between the course work and the aforementioned standards.

Note: Required textbook must be acquired separately.

National Standards Addressed in This Course

National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS)
(<http://www.nbpts.org/standards-five-core-propositions/>)

First published in 1989 and updated in 2016, What Teachers Should Know and Be Able to Do articulates the National Board's Five Core Propositions for teaching. The Five Core Propositions - comparable to medicine's Hippocratic Oath — set forth the profession's vision for accomplished teaching. Together, the propositions form the basis of all National Board Standards and the foundation for National Board Certification. Course assignments have been designed so students can demonstrate excellence against these professional teaching standards whenever possible.

- Proposition 1: Teachers are committed to students and their learning
- Proposition 2: Teachers know the subject they teach and how to teach those subjects to students
- Proposition 3: Teachers are responsible for managing and monitoring student learning
- Proposition 4: Teachers think systematically about their practice and learn from experience
- Proposition 5: Teachers are members of learning communities

This includes all time spent on the course: reading the textbook, watching videos, listening to audio lessons, researching topics, writing papers, creating projects, developing lesson plans, posting to discussion boards, etc. Coursework offered for FPU Continuing Education graduate credit adheres to 45 hours per semester unit for the 900-level courses. Therefore, a student will spend approximately 135 hours on a typical 3-unit course.

Services for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities are eligible for reasonable accommodations in their academic work in all classes. In order to receive assistance, the student with a disability must provide the Academic Support Center with documentation, which describes the specific disability. The documentation must be from a qualified professional in the area of the disability (i.e. psychologist, physician or educational diagnostician). Students with disabilities should contact the Academic Support Center to discuss academic and other needs as soon as they are diagnosed with a disability. Once documentation is on file, arrangements for reasonable accommodations can be made.
