Target Audience: 4th - 6th grade teachers

Course Description

In order to maximize the teaching/learning experience, an effort should be made to make learning a pleasantly stimulating and exciting experience. One way to achieve this is to use games because they provide attractive frameworks for learning. Due to the fact that games are a novelty they arouse interest, and in turn, what otherwise may be tedious drills become fun. Well planned curriculum games not only help to develop a zest for learning; they enhance the efficiency for remembering what was learned. In addition, the atmosphere created by games can be especially helpful for those students who do not respond well to other types of structured learning activities. Implementation of instructional games in the classroom is not only motivational but will result in higher achievement.

The colorful game boards and activities included with this course are excellent for cooperative learning groups, learning centers, and whole class participation in grades 4-6. Skill areas include spelling, word usage, vocabulary development, proofreading, math, problem solving, critical thinking, and more.

Note: There is no required textbook for this course.

National Standards Addressed in This Course

National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS)

(<http://www.nbpts.org/standards-five-core-propositions/>)

First published in 1989 and updated in 2016, What Teachers Should Know and Be Able to Do articulates the National Board's Five Core Propositions for teaching. The Five Core Propositions - comparable to medicine's Hippocratic Oath — set forth the profession's vision for accomplished teaching. Together, the propositions form the basis of all National Board Standards and the foundation for National Board Certification. Course assignments have been designed so students can demonstrate excellence against these professional teaching standards whenever possible.

- Proposition 1: Teachers are committed to students and their learning
- Proposition 2: Teachers know the subject they teach and how to teach those subjects to students
- Proposition 3: Teachers are responsible for managing and monitoring student learning
- Proposition 4: Teachers think systematically about their practice and learn from experience
- Proposition 5: Teachers are members of learning communities

Common Core State Standards (CCSS) (www.corestandards.org)

The Common Core State Standards Initiative is a state-led effort coordinated by the National Governors Association Center for Best Practices (NGA Center) and the Council of Chief State School Officers (CCSSO). The goal of this initiative is to develop a common core of state standards in English-language arts and math in grades K-12. The point of this effort is simple: improving teaching and learning to ensure that high school graduates in every part of the nation have the knowledge and skills they need for college or a career. The Common Core Standards are both research and evidence-based as well as internationally benchmarked. These standards define the knowledge and skills students should have within their K-12 education careers so that they will graduate high school fully prepared for college and careers. Though the program is optional, states that adopt it are more likely to receive Race to the Top federal dollars.

Instructor/Student Contact Information

This course requires a minimum of three contacts between the student and the instructor. The first contact point occurs after the student enrolls in the course. The instructor contacts the student by phone to welcome them to the course and Fresno Pacific University. The instructor provides an overview of the course, material, assignments, and expectations for successful completion of the course. This initial interaction also establishes a foundation for future interactions (via email or phone). The second interaction should occur when the student is approximately half-way through the course. The instructor can field any assignment questions and learn what has been most beneficial to the student so far. The final conversation occurs at the end of the course. This interaction provides a final check that all assignments have been completed, final grade request has been submitted, and answer any final questions or concerns.

Coursework Hours

Based on the Carnegie Unit standard, a unit of graduate credit measures academic credit based on the number of hours the student is engaged in learning. This includes all time spent on the course: reading the textbook, watching videos, listening to audio lessons, researching topics, writing papers, creating projects, developing lesson plans, posting to discussion boards, etc. Coursework offered for FPU Continuing Education graduate credit adheres to 45 hours per semester unit for the 900-level courses. Therefore, a student will spend approximately 135 hours on a typical 3-unit course.

Services for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities are eligible for reasonable accommodations in their academic work in all classes. In order to receive assistance, the student with a disability must provide the Academic Support Center with documentation, which describes the specific disability. The documentation must be from a qualified professional in the area of the disability (i.e. psychologist, physician or educational diagnostician). Students with disabilities should contact the Academic Support Center to discuss academic and other needs as soon as they are diagnosed with a disability. Once documentation is on file, arrangements for reasonable accommodations can be made.
