Course Description

The Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) is America's premier intelligence organization, charged with keeping constant watch in an increasingly dangerous and unstable world. Some critics have accused it of not doing enough to protect US national security. In the view of others, it has done too much, intervening excessively overseas and threatening civil liberties at home. Are these criticisms of the CIA justified? The aim of this course is to give you the information you need to decide for yourself.

As well as learning about the CIA's history from its founding to the present day, you will encounter a range of fascinating personalities. Among these are directors of the CIA such as Allen Dulles, the spy romantic who presided over the CIA's during the 1950s; the amiable but lightweight George Tenet, undone by a debacle in the War on Terror; and the CIA's first woman director, Gina Haspel, haunted by her past association with the CIA's torture program.

You will also be introduced to the directors' most important lieutenants, including the covert-operations chief Frank Wisner, the adventurous aristocrat Kim Roosevelt, the legendary Edward Lansdale, and the counterintelligence guru James Angleton. Finally, you will meet the CIA's greatest foreign foes. Such figures include the Iranian prime minister overthrown by Kim Roosevelt, Mohammed Mosaddeq; Fidel Castro, the Cuban who survived repeated Agency attempts to eliminate him; and the terrorist Osama bin Laden.

Between them, these various individuals personified deep tensions in the CIA's history that furnish the themes of this course: the fundamental contradiction between the CIA's dual intelligence and covert-action missions, successive presidents' desire for secret intelligence and covert operations versus the public's preference for openness and transparency, and the ongoing challenge of serving as the secret intelligence service of the world's largest democracy. Assignments address the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) History Standards.

Note: Course guidebook is included with the cost of the course.

National Standards Addressed in This Course

National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS)

(<http://www.nbpts.org/standards-five-core-propositions/>)

First published in 1989 and updated in 2016, What Teachers Should Know and Be Able to Do articulates the National Board's Five Core Propositions for teaching. The Five Core Propositions - comparable to medicine's Hippocratic Oath — set forth the profession's vision for accomplished teaching. Together, the propositions form the basis of all National Board Standards and the foundation for National Board Certification. Course assignments have been designed so students can demonstrate excellence against these professional teaching standards whenever possible.

- Proposition 1: Teachers are committed to students and their learning
- Proposition 2: Teachers know the subject they teach and how to teach those subjects to students
- Proposition 3: Teachers are responsible for managing and monitoring student learning
- Proposition 4: Teachers think systematically about their practice and learn from experience
- Proposition 5: Teachers are members of learning communities

NBPTS Social Studies–History Standards Statements (SS-HS)

(<https://www.nbpts.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/07/EAYA-SSH.pdf>)

The National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS) has organized the standards for accomplished teachers of social studies–history into the following eight standards. The standards have been ordered to facilitate understanding, not to assign priorities. They each describe an important facet of accomplished teaching; they often occur concurrently because of the seamless quality of accomplished practice. These standards serve as the basis for National Board Certification in social studies–history.

Knowing Students, Purpose, And Content

- Standard I: Knowing Students
- Standard II: Developing Social Understanding, Engagement, and Civic Identity
- Standard III: Content

Teaching in Context

- Standard IV: Instruction
- Standard V: Diversity
- Standard VI: Learning Environments: Classroom and Communities

Developing as a Professional

- Standard VII: Professional Growth
- Standard VIII: Reflection

Common Core State Standards (CCSS) (www.corestandards.org)

The Common Core State Standards provide a consistent, clear understanding of what students are expected to learn, so teachers and parents know what they need to do to help them. The standards are designed to be robust and relevant to the real world, reflecting the knowledge and skills that our young people need for success in college and careers. With American students fully prepared for the future, our communities will be best positioned to compete successfully in the global economy.

Instructor/Student Contact Information

Throughout the course participants will be communicating with the instructor and their classmates on a regular basis using asynchronous discussion forums. Students are provided with instructor contact information in the event they want to make email or phone contact. In addition, students are encouraged to email or phone the instructor at any time. Students will also receive feedback on the required assignments as they are submitted.

Forums

Participation is an important expectation of this course and all online courses. Online discussions promote reflection and analysis while allowing students to appreciate and evaluate positions that others express. While students may not be engaging with the same students throughout this course, they will be expected to offer comments, questions, and replies to the discussion question whenever possible. The faculty role in the discussion forum is that of an observer and facilitator.

Coursework Hours

Based on the Carnegie Unit standard, a unit of graduate credit measures academic credit based on the number of hours the student is engaged in learning. This includes all time spent on the course: reading the textbook, watching videos, listening to audio lessons, researching topics, writing papers, creating projects, developing lesson plans, posting to discussion boards, etc. Coursework offered for FPU Continuing Education graduate credit adheres to 45 hours per semester unit for the 900-level courses. Therefore, a student will spend approximately 135 hours on a typical 3-unit course.

Services for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities are eligible for reasonable accommodations in their academic work in all classes. In order to receive assistance, the student with a disability must provide the Academic Support Center with documentation, which describes the specific disability. The documentation must be from a qualified professional in the area of the disability (i.e. psychologist, physician or educational diagnostician). Once documentation is on file, arrangements for reasonable accommodations can be made. For more information and for downloadable forms, please go to <https://www.fresno.edu/departments/disability-access-education>.

Academic dishonesty, including plagiarism, will be handled per the procedures set forth in the Fresno Pacific University Catalogue and Handbook - <https://handbook.fresno.edu/graduate/academic-policies>

Technology Requirements

To successfully complete the course requirements, course participants will need Internet access, can send and receive email, know how to manage simple files in a word processing program, and have a basic understanding of the Internet. Please remember that the instructor is not able to offer technical support. If you need technical support, please contact your Internet Service Provider.
