Course Description

Fantasy literature has many unique uses for the classroom. Folktales, fairy tales and myths expose children to the storytelling heritage of a wide range of cultures. Fantasy literature also encourages creativity of expression, including presentation through visual and performing arts. It requires children to move beyond literal thinking, challenging them to interpret symbolism and make inferences. It models good writing and helps teachers stimulate creative writing. An added bonus is that students love it!

At its core, fantasy literature addresses issues of primary concern for children: good and evil, love and honor, ethics and morality. Children can relate to conflict in stories as well as identify with choices characters must make in response to difficult situations. This allows them to reflect on their own lives in the process of character development.

This course will introduce teachers to techniques and strategies for teaching fantasy literature in the classroom, and will help them deal with the unique challenges that come with reading "outside" the realistic boundaries. Teachers who enroll in this class will design activities and lessons based on selected fantasy literature. Participants will be asked to read and respond to the texts, as well as to develop ways of teaching important literary concepts.

The Common Core State Standards for Language Arts as well as the five core propositions of the National Board for Professional Teaching Standards have provided the guiding principles and philosophical basis for this course. Participants may be asked to make connections between course work and these standards or the standards of their own states.

Note: Required books for this course must be acquired separately.

Required Texts and Course Materials

Because each participant is free to select fantasy texts of his or her choice and because the books are all readily available at bookstores and libraries, none are included as materials for this course. An annotated bibliography of fantasy literature may assist the participant in selecting texts.

Course Dates

Self-paced; students may enroll at any time and take up to one year, from the date of registration, to complete assignments. Students may complete assignments in no less than three weeks for a 3-unit course (one+ week per unit).

National Standards Addressed in This Course

National Board for Professional Teaching Standards (NBPTS)

(<http://www.nbpts.org/standards-five-core-propositions/>)

First published in 1989 and updated in 2016, What Teachers Should Know and Be Able to Do articulates the National Board's Five Core Propositions for teaching. The Five Core Propositions - comparable to medicine's Hippocratic Oath — set forth the profession's vision for accomplished teaching. Together, the propositions form the basis of all National Board Standards and the foundation for National Board Certification. Course assignments have been designed so students can demonstrate excellence against these professional teaching standards whenever possible.

- Proposition 1: Teachers are committed to students and their learning
- Proposition 2: Teachers know the subject they teach and how to teach those subjects to students
- Proposition 3: Teachers are responsible for managing and monitoring student learning
- Proposition 4: Teachers think systematically about their practice and learn from experience
- Proposition 5: Teachers are members of learning communities

Common Core State Standards (CCSS) (www.corestandards.org)

This course is designed to reinforce and support the English Language Arts Standards of the Common Core State Standards Initiative (CCSS). The Anchor Standards for Reading (Grades K12) are listed here:

- Craft and Structure
- Integration of Knowledge and Ideas
- Range of Reading and Level of Text Complexity

At the completion of the course, the instructor will comment on the student's work and make suggestions, if needed.

Coursework Hours

Based on the Carnegie Unit standard, a unit of graduate credit measures academic credit based on the number of hours the student is engaged in learning. This includes all time spent on the course: reading the textbook, watching videos, listening to audio lessons, researching topics, writing papers, creating projects, developing lesson plans, posting to discussion boards, etc. Coursework offered for FPU Continuing Education graduate credit adheres to 45 hours per semester unit for the 900-level courses. Therefore, a student will spend approximately 135 hours on a typical 3-unit course.

Services for Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities are eligible for reasonable accommodations in their academic work in all classes. In order to receive assistance, the student with a disability must provide the Academic Support Center with documentation, which describes the specific disability. The documentation must be from a qualified professional in the area of the disability (i.e. psychologist, physician or educational diagnostician). Students with disabilities should contact the Academic Support Center to discuss academic and other needs as soon as they are diagnosed with a disability. Once documentation is on file, arrangements for reasonable accommodations can be made. For more information and for downloadable forms, please go to <https://www.fresno.edu/students/academic-support/services-students-disabilities>.
